HONGKONG, JUNE 1st, 1907.

In the April number of the "QUARTERLY REVIEW" appears a very able article on the origin of the domestic horse, which is not without its special interests for residents in China. The author is Professor J. C. Ewart, who has made the history and antiquities of the horse a subject of special study. It has long been a moot point in natural history whether all the domestic horses at present existing have proceeded from one or several stocks. Had the study of the horse commenced in China there would have been little difference of opinion; and the belief would have been general that at least three species have to be accounted for in China itself, without reckoning the European and Indian breeds of comparatively recent introduction. The language itself lends to this conclusion, there being two perfectly separate and distinct names for the horse, applying respectively to two perfectly distinct types. "Our mare are like Kue," the Hany-huang-chi Hwa galled third of the Lu-ming Decade of the Second Book of the Shi King, tells us:—
"Our gallant steeds the azygus spurs.
The reins are pliant in our hands.
Urge on the line; nor craven turn
This Chee's dire need our help demands."

Going up the Yangtze River but a few months ago, the writer found the grooms speaking of their steeds as "shan Kue", but this term, he learnt, was never applied to the Mongolian ponies which annually come down in large herds from the north, and which are always known as "ma". Now it is instructive to find that in the very oldest remains we have of Chinese literature, the so-called "Book of Odes" really to be translated "Classic of Ballads," the two names Ku and Ma are as clearly differentiated as at the present day. Along the southerly line for instance, we have Chinese Ku, Sanscrit kuva, Zend akva, Greek hippos, Latin equus: from the latter the name extending with the animal to old Irish ech, Cymric ep, old Saxon ehu, modern Persian asv. The type of this horse is well marked; its colour varies, but in the main it may be described as bay, running to iron grey, but never to dun, nor roan, nor white. It has a small well set head, with prominent eyes, small ears very mobile; arched neck with fairly plentiful mane hanging to one side, and good sized forelock. The withers are high, the limbs fine; the hoofs small and delicately rounded and the pasterns high and straight. The disposition is gentle, but readily excitable, and all the motions rapid and intelligent.

The Ma is in most respects the very opposite. It is usually long, of less height, and its withers so low that the back and neck form almost a straight line. Its body instead of being deep is generally almost tubular, and its limbs altogether more coarse, and the bones massive and with larger joints. The head is shorter and wider, and the jaws heavier and more powerful. The colouring and the arrangement of the hair is altogether different. Where unmixed, the colour is always white without a trace of stripe or bars, and the winter coat grows coarse and long, especially about the fetlocks. This is evidently intended as a safeguard in snowy weather. For the purpose of clearing the snow to enable the animal to get at his food when the ground is deep in snow, the hoofs are enormously spread out, and the metacarpal bones and muscles are strongly developed. To protect the neck during the heavy snows and bitter cold of north Asiatic winters as well as from mosquitoes in summer, the mane is enormously developed, and stands high at both sides of the neck, only falling at the extraneous. Even more characteristic is the tail, which is long and heavy, the hairs reaching almost to the fetlocks. In this respect the Ma is a perfect horse; along with the other variety of east and central Asiatic horses to be described below, the upper hairs of the tail are formed into a curious wisp, the purpose of which is not easily to define. In disposition the animal is as markedly different as in appearance from the Ku; it is sullen and slow in its movements, and has not the projecting eyes and vivacious habits of the other, nor is it so friendly towards its keeper, having always a reserve no matter how kindly treated. The Mongolian horse is well known throughout China, and till comparatively recently was the only one with which foreign residents came (to any extent) in contact. Even the Ma has, however, perceptibly changed of recent years.

When in 1893 FANEY and HOBSON'S Horses left China, their mounts were sold on the spot and Mongolians from the breeding grounds purchased nearly all, avowedly for the purpose of improving their stock. So jealous are these Mongol stud-keepers of their breed that they will not permit a mare to leave the breeding grounds, whilst the horses are all castrated. This practice has undoubtedly preserved the purity of the strain, as it has prevented any other strain from getting a footing in China; and it is only of comparatively recent years that horses have commenced to arrive from western sources; between these western ponies, and the intermixture of Arab strain, the external appearance of the Ma has sensibly improved; while in point of speed there is also a marked difference. Secondary to this is the change of colouring. Pure white is still to be found, but does not form as marked a characteristic as even a few years ago. The tendency is towards bay; and iron grey and chestnut, formerly rare, are now comparatively common. The disposition has also undoubtedly changed for the better, so that the Ma will in all probability soon cease to mark a separate strain. It is worth while to look back at his antecedents. He certainly at one time was an inhabitant of Europe. HERODOTUS speaks of the wild white horses on the banks of the Hypanis which can only have been these, but the name goes back much further for we meet it in Icelandic Marr, a steed of which Merr was the female, German gives us Marh, a war horse, and Anglo-Saxon Marh, while Irish Mare, and Welsh March tell us of its presence in the British Isles. European naturalists insist on appropriating the animal as the "Celtic" horse, a title to which it is hardly in fairness entitled, as its most characteristic abode is certainly Mongolia. But we can go back even further, and find it an inhabitant of France during the European glaciation. Amongst the engravings discovered on reindeer horns in the cave of La Madeleine is a horse whose identity cannot be mistaken; he has the same straight neck, the same heavy head and jaws, the same low withers, and upstanding mane, and curiously enough even the long tail with the strange wisp at its commencement was not forgotten by the aboriginal artist. In Asia all the Mongolic languages have the same name of Marin or Morin with which agree the Chinese Ma, or Mo and the Korean Mal; while Japanese Uma winds up the long list.

The claim then of both Ku and Ma to specific rank stands on a practically secure foundation, and we may accept without hesitation Professor Ewart's judgment; but we are not at the end of the discussion, for the Professor has still another claimant to bring forward whose claim stands on nearly if not quite as good a foundation. The third claimant is the Russian Tarpan, an animal which is also very much in evidence in middle China. It is well known amongst sporting men that the colour of a horse has much to say to his qualities for speed and endurance, and at first sight the reason for this peculiarity does not seem very evident. Further investigation will, however, show that colour in a horse is associated with profound changes in his general anatomy. We have spoken of the peculiarities of the bay and the white, but there is a third scarcely less distinct, whose colouring is classed as dun. But dun is not a definite colour, but applied to various shades of mouse, fawn or even blue, which fade insensibly one into the other, and so have come to have a general name applied. How the first thing that will strike one on examining a dun horse is that he has a dark stripe along his backbone, generally continued along the tail; the next is probably that he has ears long and close together, and almost like a mule's. Another thing found on examination is that more or less concealed under his dun colouring are certain bars or stripes, which taking a number of individuals together, will be found to follow regular patterns. If we now look at his tail and his hindquarters, we will find that the former is scantily supplied with hair, which moreover, like the mule's also, has a tendency to form a brush at the end. The animal is by no means a mule, as not only does he breed, but what is more to the point, he "breeds true." Equally marked in his temperament; he is distinctly less intelligent than either of his congeners, is slow and generally obstinate, more from a sluggish indifference than from actual vice. He is not, in fact, a desirable animal. The Chinese language has evolved no special name for him, but in Russia he is known as the Tarpan, and is generally assumed to be a descendant of the wild horse of the Steppes. Now in the last century, taking as their guide DARWIN, naturalists were averse from allowing multiple origins to our domestic breeds, and so endeavoured to class all three varieties under one species. Now, however, this centralising instinct has been considerably modified, and Professor Ewart is disposed to make four species out of the domestic horse, the fourth being the Lybian race. This animal does not exist in China, so does not so much concern us.

This dun variety, Professor Ewart shows, is in very close accordance with the wild horse of the Steppes, now known as Equus Przewalski, and he gives some characteristic portraits of the two, exhibiting their close correspondence in the details we have pointed out. The colouring too shows a close correspondence, much closer, in fact, than will be found to exist between many separate animals. Curiously we are not without ancient notices of this horse, which CAESAR described as the German Horse, and tells us he was neither good nor handsome, in curious accord with the views of the modern sporting man in China.

HERODOTUS mentions yet a fourth variety amongst the people known as the Sigynae, who inhabited the present plains of Hungary. "Their horses are shaggy all over the body to five fingers in depth of hair; they are small, flat-nosed and unable to carry men, but when yoked to chariots they are very fleet." Evidently HERODOTUS had in his mind's eye the ancestor of the Shetland Pony. This pare Professor Ewart, is seemingly entitled to specific rank. We apparently learn from the distribution of the horse past and present something which may prove useful in ethnography. The Mongol Pony clearly had his origin prior to the European Ice Age in western Europe; so had the memoria and the reindeer. When the climate of Europe became too hot, all three emigrated, and we find they must have passed through Siberia; the Mammoth certainly having his last home in China. With these animals likewise emigrated the human race of the European Cave-Dweller, and we likewise find his remains in that peculiar type of men whom some ethnographers ridiculously love to call "Mongolians," who impend all over Northern Asia, and whom HERODOTUS denominated Arimasians.

Messrs. Hughes and Hough, coal brokers, report that the market "continued dull for all kinds," and rates are nominal. Since May 11th, 51,400 tons arrived, and the coal expected, loading and/or to land, consists of 66,600 tons Japanese, 5,500 tons Australian, 5,000 tons, Horgay, and 4,000 tons Barco.

Yesterday at noon, Mr. G. P. Lamart, auctioneer, offered for sale by public auction the wreck of the steamer Nicolaus which vessel recently stranded off Lulu Head, Quamoy Island, near Amoy. Mr. Mok Lai-sam became the purchaser at a bid of $3,600, and for another $50 her cargo of cement also became the property of the purchaser of the vessel.

H. E. Chong Tsch-chuan, Acting Governor of Heilungkiang province, has complained to the Weiyuan that certain Japanese have been discovered secretly selling arms and ammunition to the Hinghwa or mounted bandits of Northern Manchuria, and he has requested that the Japanese Minister in Peking be asked to put a stop to the illegal traffic, as it is a menace to the peace and good order of Manchuria.

Military Japan, according to the latest advices from Washington, has gone "Irish stew mad." The Japanese War Department has ordered 300,000 cases of Irish stew, Chicago Irish stew, to be made from an improved recipe which is the outcome of the embodied studies of Libby's, of the stockyards, and Adl Komar, a military stew expert of Tokyo. The Irish stew, which will include among the ingredients sliced dried beef, Vienna sausage, plum pudding, and rice, will be made under the supervision of United States inspectors and five Japanese experts. The latter have undertaken to pass upon the seasoning. The stew proper, however, will be prepared by 80 Irish girls employed in Pekingtown, and will be made in the new portion of the stockyards built in white porcelain and marble.

A party of New York mining engineers have just narrowly escaped with their lives in Death Valley, California, famous for the whited skulls of its victims which "Scotty," the cowboy millionaire, used to say he passed on the way to his mysterious gold mine. A week ago these New Yorkers left Los Angeles, in automobiles, attracted by news of a fresh strike of gold in Willow Creek. They mounted horses after reaching Greenwater, 120 miles east of Bakersfield. For two days nothing was heard of them, so a rescue party followed them from High Peak. Eventually they discovered, by means of the telescope, a group of men at the foot of Sleep Train Gorge. The rescuers were just in time (says the Telegraph), for all were semi-delirious. They had climbed the same peak and soon what looked like a clear river several thousand feet below. The mirage enticed them into a waterless gorge, where the heat almost suffocated them.

A settlement being made last month by underwriters illustrates the present prohibitive cost of labour and materials at San Francisco. The Oregon Company's passenger steamer Columbia (2,722 tons, built in 1889) was in dry dock at the time of the earthquake a year ago and was damaged by the shock. She was subsequently examined on behalf of the underwriters and found to be not very seriously injured, and the claim was expected to be of quite a moderate character. It is 57.35 per cent. upon an insured value of $40,000! What with extortionate labour unions and other malign influences, San Francisco is not a port at which underwriters would willingly have vessels repaired. Sometimes, however, they cannot help it. There is no reason to expect that the cost of repairs at San Francisco will diminish for some considerable time.

A correspondent of the N. C. Daily News, discussing the report of our last Commission, says: "It is confessedly one of the most difficult matters to secure men who are above the temptation of bribery. The Chinese are to the manner, and to the habit, born, and are willing always to offer money in order to escape what they regard as irksome regulations, in matters dealing with their property and public health. They naturally do not like to have their property interfered with and disturbed, especially as most of the health ordinances are to them mere moonshine. If men who are above temptation to bribery are to be found, they must be paid better salaries than at present they receive. Most of the sterling salaries among the lower grades of officials are certainly too low to guarantee that when temptation comes it shall be at once trampled under foot as unworthy of an Englishman's name and fame."

The Central News states that the arrest of Sir George Arbuthnot, principal of the firm of Arbuthnot and Company, London and Madras, bankers, was effected in consequence of the separate insolvency proceedings in connection with the failure of the firm, which have been going on in Madras for the past month or two. The arrest has no connection whatever with the administration of the English branch of the estate. During the bankruptcy proceedings in Madras Sir George Arbuthnot occupied the winn-box for almost a fortnight and was subjected to a severe cross-examination as to the affairs of his firm. The first indication of the difficulties of the firm was given when the London house, Messrs. Macfadyen and Co., failed heavily. The announcement was made on a Saturday and Mr. Macfadyen, the head of the London branch of the firm, who left his office at noon on that day was subsequently found dead in one of the Tube tunnels near Old-street, having evidently been run over by an electric train.

At Shanghai on May 24th Messrs. Noel, Murray & Co., Ltd., offered for sale by auction the whole of the building materials, etc., of which the Central Hotel is composed. The conditions of sale were that the ground must be cleared of all material by July 6, 1907, at the entire risk and expense of the purchaser, and should the ground be not entirely free of material by that date, the purchaser should pay to the vendors the sum of Tls. 10 as liquidated and ascertained damages for every day expiring after that date until the ground is so cleared. There was a large attendance of Chinese contractors and bidding started at Tls. 1,000 and rose by increases of Tls. 100 until Tls. 3,300 was reached. The ground and first floors were built in the early sixties for the offices, etc., of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation and remained in the occupation of the Bank until 1874. The next lessees were Messrs. Hall and Holtz, who added an additional storey and remained tenants until about 1879, when the building was condemned. In the following year several alterations were made in the internal construction of the building and in 1880 or 1881 it was again tenanted and became and remained a hotel until the present time.

"IS HE A CHINAMAN, OR—"

HONGKONG PLOWMENISM.

Following the line suggested by our correspondent yesterday who referred to the question asked by the Chairman of the Commission as to whether a man possessing the name of Ng Sau Kwong was a Chinaman "or a Portuguese," the Peking Judge became facetious yesterday in the Supreme Court when the name of Sam Jea was called. "It looks like Sam Jea," he said. "I suppose I must ask questions like the Commissioners, and inquire what his nationality is." When the man entered the box his Honour told the interpreter to ask "What nationality is he? Is he a Straits Chinaman?" "No," was the answer. Not long afterwards another Chinaman was in the witness box who gave the name of Britannia Wong. No questions were asked him as to his nationality.

NOT MANSLAUGHTER.

A Chinese foreman named Pang I was charged with killing a coolie at East Point on the 27th ultimo. While a number of coolies were working coal, the defendant missed the coolie for a period of three hours, and when he returned and explained that he was ill, the foreman is alleged to have struck him with a stick. Shortly afterwards the condition of deceased became so serious that it was found necessary to remove him to hospital, where he died half an hour after admittance. The defendant was arrested and appeared before Mr. F. A. Macleod at the Police Court yesterday when he was discharged as a doctor's statement said that death was due to acute heart beri, and there were no external or internal injuries on the body.

DISTURBANCES ALL OVER CHINA.

A Hangehoo dispatch reports that there is much discontent in Shaohing prefecture at the additional taxes that have been levied by the officials of the Boat-tax Bureau there. A large mob attacked the Bureau outside the city of Yinn, almost destroying the place. A guard boat, moored near by, was also attacked and set on fire, the crew—only about a dozen—managed to resist the turbulent mob, who badly wounded some of the men. Not satisfied, with what they had already done, the mob next turned attention to the new district high school and primary school, the furniture of which was almost destroyed. Fortunately, the scholars had been removed in time, for as soon as the authorities heard that there was a possibility of the schools being attacked the students were at once set free for the day.

ENGLAND IN GERMANY.

There is an influence working for harmonious relations between Germany and Britain which some of us are apt to forget. Every German child is learning to speak English, so that there is no reason why English views, expressed by English writers, should not be understood in the Fatherland. That Germans are to make themselves master of our language marks a significant change in the attitude of the Kaiser towards this country. The first thing he did on Germany taking over Heligoland was to prohibit the teaching of English in the schools, seeing that the people of Heligoland had for eighty years previously been British subjects, this action naturally caused much comment abroad and great discontent among the population themselves. But the years passed away, and the Kaiser's heart seems to have warmed towards the land in which his mother was born. He went back upon the attitude adopted towards Heligoland's schools, and decided that the teaching of English should be compulsory in all German schools. The purpose may have been utilitarian; it may have been deliberately complimentary towards this country. At any rate, it had a pretty sequel. There was much sympathy between Cecil Rhodes and Kaiser William, between whom there once passed a notable exchange of compliments. When Rhodes heard of the Emperor's decision to have English taught in his schools, he drew out his will and added a codicil, declaring that, inasmuch as the Emperor had made the teaching of English compulsory, his (Rhodes's) trustees should establish fifteen scholarships at Oxford (five in each of the first three years after the testator's death) of £250 each, tenable for three years, for students of German birth; each student to be nominated by the Kaiser himself. "A good understanding between England, Germany, and the United States," he noted, "will secure the peace of the world, and educational relations from the strongest tie." The Kaiser was much struck by the donor's generosity in thinking of Germany in this way, and at once signified his intention of complying with the stipulation that the students should be nominated by himself.

SUPREME COURT.

Friday, May 31st.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE MR. A. G. WINE (PUNISHMENT JUDGE).

RENT DISPUTE.

Judgment was given by his Honor in the action in which the Colonial Treasurer sued Lo Tung for the recovery of the sum of $1,365, the amount of rent for the months of January, February and March 1907. Mr. Morrell, from the Crown Solicitor's Office, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Otto Kong Sing represented the defendant.

His Honor said the case was brought for the recovery of the rent of quarters under a Crown lease. For the defence it was stated that the defendant had written to the Registrar General cancelling the lease and resigning his position as tenant. The Registrar General accepted the resignation and cancellation and forwarded it to the Government for confirmation. The Government neither confirmed nor refused the cancellation but did what was the same as confirming it by requesting the Registrar General to find another tenant. The case was adjourned to hear the evidence of the Registrar General, and a hearing that, his Honor said he could not do anything else than find for the defendant. There would be judgment for defendant with costs.

In the other case where the Colonial Treasurer proceeded against Lo Tung on a similar claim for $450, Mr. Otto Kong Sing applied for a rehearing, the case having been adjourned against the defendant, but execution deferred, pending the result of the previous case.

Mr. Morrell did not raise any objection and the order for rehearing was granted.

CLAIM FOR WAGES.

J. E. Watson claimed from A. C. Macmillan and another for $1,000. Mr. E. J. Grist appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Holborow for the defendant. Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon represented the first defendant.

Mr. Holborow—My client has no knowledge of the claim.

Mr. Grist—It is for three months' wages at $100 a month and $100 board and lodgings.

His Honor—What is your client?

Mr. Holborow—He is a mining expert.

His Honor—Where is the second defendant?

Mr. Holborow—I don't think he can be found.

His Honor—Is he also a mining expert?

Mr. Grist—He is a mining engineer.

Mr. Holborow—My client says he is ignorant of the claim.

Mr. Grist—The first defendant is leaving the Colony to-morrow.

Mr. Holborow—My client is going to-morrow. He has very important business at Vancouver. It is necessary for him to go. He will be back in six weeks' time.

Subsequently Mr. Holborow asked for pleadings and an adjournment.

His Honor—I don't mind pleadings and an adjournment but it must be on conditions.

Mr. Grist—I ask for security.

Mr. Holborow—I am prepared to give it.

His Honor made an order for pleadings and adjourned the case for six weeks on defendant finding security for $1,200.

TWO SUSPECTED SUICIDES.

The pond at the Cotton Mills, East Point, seems to have special attraction for those wishing to end their days. Within the last two days the bodies of two women have been dragged therefrom. Suicide is suspected in each instance.

The body found in the pond on Thursday has been identified as that of a woman who is said to have been laid down. Her mother has been ill for some weeks, and deceased continued to nurse her until Thursday, when they had a difference. Because the mother asked for a cup of tea, the daughter told her that she was giving her too much work to do. The mother replied that if the daughter did not care to tend her, she could return to her husband. The daughter left the sick bed, and is believed to have jumped into the pond and drowned herself.

The body discovered in the pond yesterday morning was found to be that of a woman about 40 years of age. There were no marks of violence on the body, and as jewellery was found on the person of the deceased, the inference drawn by the police is that it was another case of suicide. The woman has not yet been identified.

HONGKONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

An extraordinary meeting of shareholders in the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation was held at the City Hall at noon yesterday. Mr. C. H. Medhurst presided, and there were also present Messrs. R. Shewan, H. Keswick, A. J. Raymond, A. Fuchs, E. Sh. and H. E. Tompkins (directors), M. R. M. Smith (Chief Manager), Mr. J. C. Peter, Mr. C. W. May, Sir Paul Chater, Captain C. I. Williams, Hon. Mr. E. A. Howell, Messrs. W. H. Parrell, J. McArthur, Chan Tong, Bo Fook, C. S. Gubbay, Ellis Kadouris, A. V. Apcar, W. H. Treachard Davis, J. Gregory, F. Maitland, Lo Cheung-shui, Cheung Pui-kai, H. N. Mody, S. H. Michael, F. Smyth, J. B. Barton, W. Dunbar, F. A. Gomes, B. Mitchell, F. P. Hett, H. Humphreys, J. de Champeaux, E. G. Barrett, Sommar Mowjee, W. H. Wickham, A. Roger, A. Findlay Smith, J. M. S. Alves, Weng Leung-him, G. C. C. Master C. Rogge, Ho Kom-tong, J. Whalley, G. V. D. Parr, R. R. Hynd and A. P. Warrack.

The CHAIRMAN—Gentlemen, there being a sufficient number of shareholders present and a sufficient number of shares represented to form a quorum under conditions of the deed of settlement, I will now ask the Chief Manager to read the notice calling the meeting.

The CHIEF MANAGER having read the notice.

The CHAIRMAN said:—Gentlemen, you have been invited to attend to-day to consider three proposals, and, if you approve of these proposals, to pass certain resolutions necessary to give effect to them. The proposals are:—(1) The increase of the Bank's capital; (2) The extension of the period of the operation of the Bank's Ordinance; (3) The continuation of all the provisions of the clause of our Ordinance relating to our excess note issue. The question of the increase of our capital is one which has occupied the attention of the Court of Directors for some considerable time. At the General Meeting of Shareholders held on the 6th February last, my predecessor in the chair in referring to the proposed increase of capital, called attention to the steady increase of our business, the expansion of Far Eastern trade, and the widening field for the employment of foreign capital in China. The circular letter of the 12th March last, which has been in your hands for some time, fully sets forth the scheme for the increase of capital and I need only add that your Directors are confirmed in their opinion that it is a good thing alike for the shareholders and for the customers of the Bank. With regard to the other two proposals they are of a formal nature, but your Directors considered it advisable that they should be submitted at this meeting. Under our Ordinance the term for which the Bank is incorporated is limited and will expire on 14th August 1908. If we are to continue to remain incorporated and carry on business we must obtain the permission of the Government to do so, and we propose to ask that this permission be given for a further period of 21 years and that all the provisions of the clause of our Ordinance relating to our excess note issue be continued for a like period. By obtaining your sanction now to apply for these extensions we avoid the necessity of calling another extraordinary meeting next year for that purpose. The necessary resolutions will now be put before you one by one and an opportunity given you to enquire into or discuss any points which may in your view call for explanation.

The CHAIRMAN proposed—That the Directors of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation be and they are hereby requested and authorised by and on behalf of the shareholders of the Company to take the steps necessary for the introduction of an Ordinance into the Legislative Council of the Colony of Hongkong and for the enactment of the same by the Governor of Hongkong with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council thereof to effect the amendments necessary to the Ordinance under which the Company is incorporated and carrying on business so as to allow of the capital of the Company being from time to time increased from ten millions of dollars, the present authorised capital of the Company, to twenty millions of dollars and also for extending the period of the operation of such Ordinance for a further period of 21 years and for including all the provisions of section 3 of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation Ordinance 1869 for a further period of 21 years from and including the 14th day of August, 1908.

Hon. Mr. HEWITT seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed—That from the date of such new Ordinance coming into operation and becoming effective the Capital of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation be increased from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 by the creation of 40,000 New Shares of $125 each to be issued at the price of $30 on the terms after mentioned. Shareholders on the Eastern registers to pay for their allotments at the rate of exchange for the Company's demand Bills on London on the day the instalments are due.

Mr. J. BARTON seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed—That the said new shares be in the first instance, in such manner as the Directors shall prescribe for that purpose offered to shareholders in the proportion of one new share for every two shares of which on the 31st day of May, 1907, shareholders shall respectively be the registered holders, and that any new shares not accepted by the shareholders within the time limited by the Directors for that purpose, be disposed of and allotted by the Directors in such manner and at such prices as in their discretion they shall think best in the interests of the Company.

Mr. MITCHELL seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed that the payment of the sum of £30 per share for each of the said new shares be made as follows, viz:—

1st instalment of £15 on the 1st day of July, 1907.

2nd and final instalment of £15 on the 1st day of October, 1907.

Mr. TRENCHARD DAVIS seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed that the Directors issue to shareholders, holding shares not a multiple of two, a fractional certificate in respect of each share in excess of or below the multiple and allot one new share to every person who shall produce two fractional certificates on or before the 1st day of July, 1907, and pay the instalment in respect thereof.

Mr. HUMPHREYS seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed that after payment of the first instalment, and pending payment of the remaining instalment, scrip certificates in such form as the Directors may determine be issued in respect of such new shares entitling the holders on payment of the remaining instalment, and subject to such other terms as to approval, date for lodging scrip certificates and otherwise as the Directors may prescribe, to be registered as the owners of the shares respectively by such scrip certificates.

Mr. MASTER seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed that interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum be allowed out of the profits of the company on instalments paid in advance of the dates when the same become due, and that registered holders of scrip certificates for new shares be entitled in respect of such new shares to participate in future dividends on an equality with the old shares, in proportion to the instalments paid up, and from due dates for payment of same.

Mr. DE CHAMPEAUX seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed that interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum be charged on each instalment not punctually paid, and be paid with each such instalment.

Mr. WICKHAM seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN proposed that all moneys received from premium on the said new shares be added to the Reserve Fund.

Mr. MAITLAND seconded. Carried.

The CHAIRMAN—Gentlemen, that concludes the business before the meeting, and I thank you for your attendance. I have the pleasure to inform you that according to our deed of settlement a further meeting will not be required to confirm the resolutions we have passed to-day.

THE NATIONAL BANK OF CHINA LIMITED.

The report of the Directors to the sixteenth ordinary general meeting of shareholders, to be held at the head office of the bank, Victoria Building, Hongkong, on Saturday, June 23rd reads:—

To the Shareholders of the National Bank of China, Limited.

Gentlemen,—The Directors have now the pleasure to submit to you the accounts and balance sheet for the year ending 31st December, 1906.

DUMPING AND CREMATION.

At the recent meeting of the Hongkong Sanitary Board, an anomalous, semi-representative body which ought either to be reformed or abolished, an interesting discussion took place on the dumping of bodies in the streets of the colony.

The subject was brought to the notice of the Board by the Colonial Secretary, who wrote that in spite of the elaborate measures adopted by the authorities for the treatment of plague cases and to consolidate Chinese prejudices, the disgraceful abandonment of dead bodies in the streets and elsewhere went on unchecked. The Medical Officer of Health said there seemed to be only one course left, and that was to cremate all bodies found in the streets. This is not a new or novel suggestion. It was made when the first serious plague epidemic was its height in 1896, when the disposal of the native victims became a difficult problem. The other members of the Board, however, were not agreed that the suggestion would put an end to the dumping evil; but before considering their objections it may be explained that the chief reason why these bodies are thrown out upon the streets is to avoid the trouble and expense entailed by a visitation of the Sanitary Board's cleansing and disinfecting staff. Dumping has always been resorted to by the Chinese, more or less, but usually in the case of infants only. Sickly children, and especially female children, were abandoned by their parents, without compunction, and many are still left at the doors of the Roman Catholic institutions of the Colony, where they are taken in and cared for and brought up in the faith, should they survive. There are some rooms in the Harbour, known as the Channel Rocks, where bodies used to be found daily. It was not till some of the later plague epidemics, however, that the evil became pronounced, and we learn from the discussion referred to that last year no less than 1,447 bodies were dumped in the streets. This year, the number in the first three months was 377, and of these only 133 were cases of infectious diseases.

The problem the authorities have to face is how to prevent dumping. When the cremation of the bodies was first proposed, it was assumed it would not act as a deterrent, as this method of disposing of the dead was believed to be repugnant to the Chinese—and this was apparently the idea of the Medical Officer of Health when he recommended the proposal; but he did not believe it would be a deterrent, and that the view taken by the Principal Civil Medical Officer, the Hon. Dr. J. M. Atkinson. The population of Hongkong consists chiefly of male adults. The dead Chinaman has seldom any relatives on the spot, and the boarding-house keepers give a few cents to have the bodies taken out at night and deposited in the streets, often in the most crowded thoroughfare, or on the hillside. In one epidemic, companies of British and Indian troops were told off to patrol the streets at night, but this did not reduce the dumping very materially. Then the authorities decided to press every household into the preventive service. They decreed that any and every house outside of which a dead body was found would be invaded by the White Wash Brigade and cleaned—a severe punishment, as carried out in reality, but ineffectual as a deterrent. For dead bodies were mostly found, after this, outside the banks and principal business houses or opposite the residences of the well-to-do Chinese. In 1904, a new scheme was proposed by the Registrar General (Hon. Mr. A. W. Brown). Mr. Lau Chu-pak and Mr. Fung Ya-chun, all members of the Sanitary Board. On the confession of the Government, this scheme has failed, as all others have done. The Principal Civil Medical Officer proposed also as the most sanitary method of disposing of the bodies and also the more reverent, since the bodies of Buddhist priests are buried in China and there is nothing in Taoism to preclude it.

There was an opposition of three to this cremation proposal. It consisted of the Registrar General and his two colleagues authors of the scheme at present in operation. All three defended it, and Mr. Tan Chu-pak was particularly eloquent in his defence. He said that if the Chinese were granted facilities to treat their sick at home and to bury their dead, there would be no dumping. The Registrar General made the statement—which is quite true—that the Chinese have lost confidence in the Government. This loss of confidence, however, is due to the weakness of the Government. Had the Government, from the outset, in the plague epidemic of 1896 and subsequently, laid down a definite course of action and maintained it, in spite of the opposition of the banks and principal business houses, the epidemic would not have had so serious a result. The same invariable policy in India has allowed plague to spread throughout the land until one despairs of seeing it eradicated. In India, however, the problem was more difficult than in Hongkong, where caste and religious prejudice did not exist; but it would have been better at the beginning to take risks by assuming a paternalistic firmness in treatment than to yield to native ignorance of hygienic laws. Although the proposal to cremate dumped bodies has been defeated in Hongkong, the authorities should not be deterred from providing the means for cremating the dead. Such provision should exist in all Far Eastern Colonies, and in Singapore no less than in Hongkong.—Straits Times.

THE TEA MARKET.

A correspondent sent the N. C. Daily News the following information:—

The tea news from Hankow to date is of a particularly meagre nature, partly because of a shortage on the part of buyers to let their purchases be generally known too early, and partly because of the departure by the native boats from the good old custom of "singing out" on the following morning the sales of the previous day.

Buying was rather slow to begin with, but during the past week has been brisker and more generous. Prices all round may be said to be ten per cent. dearer than last year, though the quality of the crop is regarded to be 20 per cent. superior to that of 1906. But measuring quality by a percentage premium is not altogether very reliable.

Even at the higher prices ruling, natives are said to be slight losers. Supplies, however, will be plenty in excess of last year.

SAN FRANCISCO DISCLOSURES.

In 1901, an obscure Jewish lawyer named Abraham Ruef, who had been a local "bo" in a small way of the Republican party, quarrelled with his leaders over the selection of a candidate for the city mayoralty, and he promptly crossed over to the side of the Labour Unionists with the votes of which he had control. A man called Schmitz was nominated for the mayoralty by the labour unions and was elected by a small majority against the Republican candidate. Not many years before, practically the complete control of the Municipal affairs of San Francisco had been placed under the rule of the mayor, and in the hands of a honest man the system had worked well. There were, however, unlimited possibilities for a man of small conscience, and the new mayor soon showed that he had realised them. In his own personality there was nothing particularly to qualify him for his office except his handsome figure and a ready tongue. He was at the time earning $40 a week—in a city where the cost of living is high—as leader of the orchestra in the Columbia Theatre, and was president of the Musicians' Union. He had previously attempted higher things in various business enterprises, but had not met with success.

Scarcely had he stepped into the mayoralty than he wrote a letter to Abraham Ruef, who had acted as his attorney, intimating that throughout his term of office he would be guided by Ruef's advice and judgment. This letter was sent to the newspaper by Ruef, and was interpreted as a hint that those who wanted favour from the Municipality had better deal through him. From that time the lawyer was the "boss" of San Francisco. In an incredibly short time the municipal offices were filled with men whose sole claim to their positions was that they were expert blackmailers. The most amazing state of affairs occurred in connection with disorderly houses. These were first placed upon a system of taxation, and then a scheme of blackmail which forced all purchases to be made at special "Municipal" shops was instituted. Then came another stage. A big building was erected at a cost of 20,000 dollars, which very soon became known to the public as "Municipal Club," and to secure its complete success, rival houses in the neighbourhood were prosecuted and suppressed. It is said that the profits from this source totalled 300,000 dollars in the first year. Now has come the prosecution, and the exposure of the Municipalities have been making huge incomes out of bribes which ranged between $100 and $200,000. There is no doubt that President Roosevelt has taken more than a mere interest in the prosecution of the San Francisco "grafters." The Federal Government practically sent Mr. Henry, the chief prosecuting officer, to San Francisco. He is one of the ablest lawyers in the Federal Service, and was given a year's leave of absence in order that he might be appointed Assistant District Attorney of San Francisco. The extraordinary thing is that while the earthquake has been the cause of the ultimate breaking up of the gang, it has also proved the most profitable time they have ever enjoyed.

JOINT STOCK SHARES.

Messrs. Vernon & Smyth say in their weekly share report dated Hongkong 31st May, 1907:—

We have again to report upon another quiet week with rates in most cases still inclining toward weakness.

RAILS.—Hongkong and Shanghai have still further declined, and are now at an unimportant level at $8.80, $8.75, and $8.65, close with sellers at $8.80, and $8.75, and $8.65. London has receded to $39. Nationals are unaltered at $51.

MARINE INSURANCES.—Unions have been booked at $7.70 and $7.60, and a few shares are still for sale at the latter rate. Langkates are still for sale at $105. Sugar shares are unchanged and North China are unchanged and without business.

FIRE INSURANCES.—Chinas have improved to $18 at which rate sales have been effected and there are further buyers. Hongkongs are procurable at the reduced rate of $32.5.

SHIPPING.—Hongkong, Canton and Macao close steady at $2.94, after small sales at that rate and $30. Douglas has advanced to $40 after sales at $38.2 and $39. Indos are unchanged with sellers at $71. Sugar shares are unchanged with sellers at $25, and $16 for the old and new issues respectively, and the dividend of 10 per cent. for the year ending 30th April, 1907, paid yesterday. Shell Transports have receded to 47s.

REFINERIES.—China Sugars have been booked in a small way at $118, but have not retained their position, and are now procurable at $115. Luzons are still for sale at $21.
